

Education for freedom

12-5.30pm, Sunday 21 October
University of East London Docklands Campus
(Cyprus DLR)

What would a democratic, egalitarian, sustainable education system look like? How do we get it?

This conference, sponsored by the Education Not for Sale network, looks at the challenges facing radical and socialist activists in the education sector. From nursery through to post-graduate studies, the capitalist drive to profit from education has been strengthened massively under the New Labour government. Meanwhile, around the world, state education systems are being wrenched open, privatised and put on the market. Education is up for sale.

But can we fight this commodification of knowledge effectively simply by defending the status quo of bureaucratic state education under capitalism? We think not.

As well organising campaigns and actions for the period ahead, the conference will focus on discussing ideas and perspectives generated by students, teachers and other workers in struggle, in Britain and internationally, today and in the past, to inspire us in our fight for free education in a free society.

Sessions will cover the following themes:

- ▶ Educating for capitalism
- ▶ Ten years of New Labour's education policy
- ▶ Radical visions for education: Freire, Illyich and May '68
- ▶ Education, alienation and the environment
- ▶ Students in struggle internationally: Iran, Zimbabwe
- ▶ Making the case for free education
- ▶ Sex education

For more information or to pre-register ring 07974 331 053 or email robsivapalan@hotmail.com

Education Not for Sale is an anti-capitalist student network that fights for free education and a democratic, campaigning NUS. Our website is www.free-education.org.uk and ENS Women is www.socialistfeminist.org.uk

Education for freedom

12-5.30pm, Sunday 21 October
University of East London Docklands Campus
(Cyprus DLR)

What would a democratic, egalitarian, sustainable education system look like? How do we get it?

This conference, sponsored by the Education Not for Sale network, looks at the challenges facing radical and socialist activists in the education sector. From nursery through to post-graduate studies, the capitalist drive to profit from education has been strengthened massively under the New Labour government. Meanwhile, around the world, state education systems are being wrenched open, privatised and put on the market. Education is up for sale.

But can we fight this commodification of knowledge effectively simply by defending the status quo of bureaucratic state education under capitalism? We think not.

As well organising campaigns and actions for the period ahead, the conference will focus on discussing ideas and perspectives generated by students, teachers and other workers in struggle, in Britain and internationally, today and in the past, to inspire us in our fight for free education in a free society.

Sessions will cover the following themes:

- ▶ Educating for capitalism
- ▶ Ten years of New Labour's education policy
- ▶ Radical visions for education: Freire, Illyich and May '68
- ▶ Education, alienation and the environment
- ▶ Students in struggle internationally: Iran, Zimbabwe
- ▶ Making the case for free education
- ▶ Sex education

For more information or to pre-register ring 07974 331 053 or email robsivapalan@hotmail.com

Education Not for Sale is an anti-capitalist student network that fights for free education and a democratic, campaigning NUS. Our website is www.free-education.org.uk and ENS Women is www.socialistfeminist.org.uk